

Child poets speak of love & life

DB Post Correspondent

Bhopal: A mother-child relationship is based on unconditional love. She is the one who takes care of every need of her child. But, for kids who do not have mothers, achievements in life do not matter and life becomes tough.

The poem, Mother, recited by Akash Soni, 16, touched the audience's heart strings at Jawahar Bal Bhavan at the Foundation Day anniversary celebrations of the institute. The three-day-long celebrations ended on Tuesday with a child poets' meet. It was an enchanting evening to remember.

'Farq hota hai khuda aur fakeer me.' Farq hota hai kismet aur laaker me' was a poem based on life's struggles, recited by a student of St Joseph's Co-ed School, Harsh Saxena, which thoroughly impressed critics with its presentation style. The child recited it in a musical manner and with full confidence.

My grandfather writes amazing poetry & I'm inspired by him. Since age 5, I've attended poets' meets. Writing poems is one of my hobbies. I hope, one day, this hobby turns into my passion & profession

-Harsh Saxena, student

HIGHLIGHTS

- 13 kids from renowned schools in the city, including TSVS, DPS, Carmel Convent, Sharda Vidya Mandir and so on, took part
- Finalist of Sabse Bada Kalakar Dhruv Acharya was felicitated by director Tripti Tripathi