

Parents learn how to make learning fun for children

DB Post Correspondent

Bhopal: As part of the 3-Way Handshake, with parents and teachers working together with the children, a Phonic Workshop and Academic Orientation was organised for the parents of Aadhar, the pre-primary block of The Sanskaar Valley School on Saturday. An insight into all that would be done in academics in the coming months was given to the parents and the transaction methodology followed in the school was explained at the workshop conducted in the classes by the teachers.

The aim of the orientation programme, which is organised each year, is to help parents reinforce the concepts in the same way at home as in the school. Emphasis was laid on working together for the child and making learning fun and 'stress-less'!

TEACHING AIDS FOR USE AT HOME

A lot of teaching aids used in class were on display & the parents were shown how they could use these at home, too

The parents, especially the new members of the Sanskaar family, found the workshop very useful

It helped them get clarity on concepts & topics that were new to them
